LOCAL WOMAN IS GIVEN HIGH CHURCH HONOR

TWO SANTA ANA has come the honor of furnishing the president for the Los Angeles Presbyterial, Fourth largest body of Presbyterial churchwomen in the United States, in the election yesterday to that responsible post of Mrs. R. E. Carswell of East Fourth street.

The two-day convocation of Presbyterial women of the Southland came to a close yesterday in Glendale Presbyterial church with the annual election of officers. Mrs. Carswell, who is a member of Tustin Presbyterial church, was advanced from the post of vice president of Orange county district, which she has held consecutively for five years. Mrs. William Sutherland of Orange was elected to succeed her in the vice presidency.

Districts represented in the Presbyterial are Orange county, San Diego county, Pasadena-Glendale, Central (which embraces Los Angeles and its environs), Southern, Valley and Long Beach. Several hundred women were in attendance at the annual meeting, which provided many fine speakers. A score or more members of Santa Ana Presbyterial church attended various sessions, and included in addition to Mrs. Carswell, Mrs. O. Scott McFarland, wife of the pastor; Mrs. Harry Lewis, Mrs. Clyde Downing, Mrs. R. J. Moore, president of the Missionary society; Mrs. Lucy Shaffer, long engaged in home missionary work, and many others.

RELIEF WORKER IS HEIR TO MILLIONS

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—(UP)—J. R. Willis, employed as an $80-a-month government relief worker, today dramatically contemplated an inheritance of a $10,000,000 estate in Texas and Louisiana.

Although relatives in Jacksonville, Tex., believed Willis set too high a value on the land left by his father, the late T. J. Willis, he declared an investigation showed that oil discovered on the plantation made the property worth that much.

The estate, now in probate, is comprised of 3,800 acres in Louisiana and East Texas. It was considered worthless, Willis said, when left by his father but geological surveys showed it was rich in petroleum shale.

Willis is married and has one child. He is 45 years old and had been on relief for "some time now."

STATE FACES 3-WAY FIGHT FOR SUPPORT

Developments Leave Political Puzzle Further Complicated

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 14.—(UP)—A triangular fight for California's support in the national Republican presidential convention loomed today with the addition of Senator William E. Borah to the field of candidates seeking control of the state's delegation.

First to organize definitely for the May 5 primary fight were the forces of Gov. Al M. Landon of Kansas and friends of Gov. Frank P. Merriam. The Landon delegation, named in an effort to harmonize all factions of the party, contained a liberal representation of Merriam supporters, as well as representatives of the Republican assembly, young Republicans, and the State Central committee.

Announcement that Borah would enter the California primary, following closely the listing of Landon delegates, did not clarify the muddled political situation, and left uncompleted the plans of Earl Warren, chairman of the Republican State Central committee, to fight for an unopposed election.

As a result of developments the past 24 hours, it appeared that the California Republican primary ballot would give party members in this state the choice of voting for Landon, Borah or an unopposed delegation which would be expected to swing its support to former President Herbert Hoover if a Hoover boom was started at the convention.

There was considerable belief at the capitol, however, that Warren would not go through with his proposal for an unopposed group, but would release his followers and permit them to swing into either Landon's or Borah's camp. Such a development would cause the G. O. P. fight to simmer down to a contest between the Kansas governor and the Idaho senator.

Merriam workers, who switched to Landon when the California executive withdrew from the convention.

ROME, March 14.—(UP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and their son, Jon, will spend the spring and summer in Italy at the Villa Imperiale in Alassio, the official news agency reported today.

The dispatch said the owner of the villa had refused to accept rent from Lindbergh because of his regard for the famous flier.

The Lindberghs now are in England.

Charges Husband Put Salt In Bed

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(UP)—It wasn't so bad when Mrs. Edith Allen's husband kicked her, burned her neck with a lighted cigarette, threw gin in her face and tied knots in her pajamas, but when he put salt in her bed—well that was just too much, she told Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat in District of Columbia supreme court.

Her divorce petition was granted.

MORALS CHARGE IS HURLED IN BATTLE OVER 'LITTLE GLORIA'

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(UP)—Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, seeking to retain custody of little Gloria Vanderbilt, filed charges in supreme court today of "evidence of immorality" against the child's mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt.

Mrs. Whitney filed a brief in response to Mrs. Vanderbilt's plea that the high tribunal overrule a New York state court which refused the mother custody of the child.

In the Vanderbilt brief it was said the trial court made no finding that Mrs. Vanderbilt was an "unfit" mother.

"Consideration for the child's welfare forbade a request for a specific finding as to the applicant's morals," Mrs. Whitney's brief said in reply.

"The evidence of immorality of the mother, of her association with a certain type of woman, of her

4 HAVE CLOSE CALL AS AUTO CRASHES STORE

DEATH begrudgingly took a holiday at 1:40 a. m. today as an uncontrolled automobile carried four persons on a mad, crashing dash through the front of the Oakley Furniture store, at Fourth and Spurgeon, and landed upright halfway to the rear of the store's interior, after smashing doors and plate glass windows to smithereens.

Three of the persons, two girls and a boy, suffered minor injuries as the driver, Raymond Helm Jr., 18, of 1015 North Olive street, Santa Ana, who was in jail today on a drunk driving charge, went unscathed. The injured, Betty Merritt, 1442 South Maple, with bruised leg; Myrtle Golins, 707 West Third, head and ankle injuries, and Harold Williams, 520 West Fifth, ankle scratch, were taken to Santa Ana Valley hospital, given first aid and sent home.

According to report of Officer Harry Prichard who was standing near the corner of Fourth and Main, the Helm car was traveling south on Spurgeon and a car operated by George Opp, 21, 501 East Twentieth street, was going west on Fourth, when they crashed in the intersection, causing Helm to lose control. Missing a city lamp post by inches, the Helm car crashed with terrific impact against the front doors of the Oakley place, crushing them and completely demolishing the entire store front, including both plate glass windows. The damage was estimated at from $1,000 to $1,200. In front of and in the wake of the car, which landed midway between the front and rear of the store, were strewn store supplies, including two refrigerators, a popcorn machine, showcase, two or three chairs, four or five radios and numerous furniture store novelties. The front end of the car, a Plymouth, was crushed in, but otherwise little damaged.

CANNED TOMATOES CAUSE POISONING

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—(UP)—Mrs. Vera Critchfield, 44, was critically ill today from food poisoning and three other members of her family were in serious condition after eating a meal which included canned tomatoes issued them by a county relief agency.

In addition to Mrs. Critchfield, those stricken were her 11-year-old son, Gale, her daughter, Mrs. Hazel Langley, 25, and her son, Leroy Langley Jr., 8.

The can of tomatoes, labelled "LACRA" and apparently issued by the Los Angeles county relief administration, was turned over to the police for chemical analysis as was some minced ham the family had purchased for the noon meal.

Shakespeare Had Better Keep Out Of This Village

TEMESVAR, Roumania, March 14.—(UP)—William Shakespeare had better keep away from this section in the second floor of the White House, there was the general feeling that the amount asked would be slightly in excess of a billion dollars inasmuch as there is a billion dollar carry over from the $4,830,000,000 works fund.

Mr. Roosevelt, urged by congressional advisors to hold his relief request to $1,000,000,000 for seven months after July 1, began drafting the recommendations after a conference last night with Harry Hopkins, Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell and Corrington Gill, deputy relief administrator.

As Mr. Roosevelt prepared his estimates in the seclusion of his study on the second floor of the White House, there was the general feeling that the amount asked would be slightly in excess of a billion dollars inasmuch as there is a billion dollar carry over from the $4,830,000,000 works fund.

HITLER'S BOYS LOOK SITUATION OVER

Here is the visualization of a scene that might be enacted any time during the coming months, now that Chancellor Hitler has established his troops in the demilitarized Rhine Valley. In the foreground bucket-helmeted soldiers man a machine gun while in the background is an airview of the thriving city at the juncture of the Rhine and Moselle rivers, now ringing to the feet of Hitler's troops again. France doesn't like the idea. Locarno treaty signatory powers had their heads together Saturday in Europe trying to figure out what can be done about it.

HOUSE BEGINS PROBE OF $200 PENSION PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(UP)—While the senate lobby investigating committee prepared to defend its contention of power to subpoena telegrams, the house old age pension investigation began today with a $50,000 appropriation.

The senate committee, which already has suffered one reverse in District of Columbia supreme court and is threatened with a second, was said by its members to expect a flood of such suits.

House approval of the $50,000 appropriation to finance an inquiry into the Townsend and other old age pension plans was the signal for two veteran investigators working under James R. Sullivan, Kansas City, to begin a search for evidence.

First efforts of the committee will be directed at the Townsend plan to pay persons over 69 a pension of $200 a month with funds to be raised from a transaction tax.

Rep. C. Jasper Gill, D. Mo., chairman of the house eight-man, non-partisan committee, said his group would begin meetings soon to map a "campaign plan." Public.

VENTURA LABORERS PARADE IN STRIKE

VENTURA, Cal., March 14.—(UP)—Renewed demonstrations were feared today as a score of laborers continued their strike against a Public Works Administration project, demanding higher wages and a "closed" shop.

The laborers paraded around the project, construction of a $100,000 postoffice, carrying banners that said the PWA was "unfair to organized labor."

The workers demand an increase of 10 cents an hour from the present rate of 50 cents an hour for unskilled wages and also that the workers be hired from the ranks of the Ventura county building trades association.

A new crew was recruited through the federal re-employment office here and work continued on the project today.

French troops entering the Rhineland zone within the next three months—48-1 to 2 against.

Two days ago Lloyd's refused to quote odds on a European war.

REGISTER WARRANTS FOR STATE RELIEF

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 14.—(UP)—Controller Ray L. Riley announced today he would sell $300,000 in registered state warrants Monday to provide funds for the continuation of direct relief work this month.

He anticipated no trouble in converting the warrants into cash, as California banks which have been purchasing the warrants in the past gave no indication they would refuse to accept the additional allotment.

Sale of the warrants was necessitated by continued heavy demands for the dole. Relief directors spent $1,500,000 the first 14 days this month, although it had been hoped that that amount would be sufficient for the entire month.

Riley said that if expenditures continued at the present rate, the relief fund shortage for this fiscal year would be approximately $4,000,000, and that funds would be exhausted by June 1, or possibly in May.

FLOOD TOLL IS CLIMBING; RAIN ADDS TO FEARS

BOSTON, March 14.—(UP)—Forecasts of rain carried a threat today of still worse floods in northeastern states and parts of Canada. The death toll already was approaching 50 and 10,000 persons have been driven from their homes. Property damage runs into the millions.

New England rivers, particularly the Merrimack which isolated Concord, N. H., and forced 3,000 families to seek higher ground, receded slightly this morning. Floods also were abating in the Hudson valley in New York.

The forecast of rain tonight and tomorrow caused new apprehension however. Officials in New England considered appealing for army bombing planes to break ice jams which backed up the flood waters. Three coast guard amphibians were ready at Salem, Mass., for emergency rescue work.

It was estimated that 75,000 New Englanders were left jobless by inundation of mills.

Nations Decline to Negotiate Until Fuehrer Makes Amends

LONDON, March 14.—(UP)—Powere signatory to the Locarno treaty tonight decided to refrain from all negotiations with Germany until Fuehrer Adolf Hitler has made amends for what they regard as his illegal occupation of the Rhineland and his denunciation of the pact.

It was announced officially that the Locarno conferees will not meet again until after the League of Nations council decides upon the French and Belgian protests and demands for punishment of Germany.

The decision was taken after the League of Nations council invited Germany, as a Locarno treaty signatory, to sit with it Monday and after France demanded economies and financial sanctions to punish the reich for its treaty violations.

France, supported by Belgium, is determined to punish Germany unless the gray-clad forces of the reich army are withdrawn from the banks of the River Rhine.

The report that the Locarno signatories, in a late afternoon meeting, assented to the French demand to refuse to deal with Hitler until he moves to regularize his Rhineland coup by giving adequate pledges and taking suitable action, was regarded as indicating a significant victory for French Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin.

The turn of events denoted important British concession to France and indirectly to the French allies—Soviet Russia, the Little Entente and the Balkan entente.

France's allies have insisted steadfastly that there can be no traffic with Hitler until he has righted the alleged wrong committed.

Flandin today received instructions from French Premier Albert Sarraut to adopt a stiffer attitude. Reports that Flandin had begun yielding slightly to Great Britain aroused strong criticism of Sarraut.

RUSSIANS AROUSED AT BORDER TROUBLE

MOSCOW, March 14.—(UP)—A new Siberian border incident reported officially by the Russian government, brought fresh tension between Russia and Japan today and introduced a new factor of uneasiness into the troubled European situation.

A Japanese-Manchoukuoan military detachment, according to official Haharovsk dispatches, fired shots from an automobile at Soviet workers excavating along the Amur river within Soviet territory.

The shooting was termed "vicious and provocative" by officials here. After the attack, during which the Soviet workers retreated, five Japanese soldiers allegedly violated the frontier by crossing the border to inspect the excavation.

SEEK MILLIONAIRE IN TAX EVASIONS

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—(UP)—U. S. Attorney Pearson M. Hall today said a New York millionaire is sought as the "brains" of a ring suspected of defrauding the government of $1,000,000 in liquor taxes.

Hall did not reveal the man's name. The attorney said: "He has one of the largest fortunes in the country and his activities seem to have been prompted merely by a spirit of adventure."

The coast-wide investigation has led to the arrest of 12 men and the indictment of 50 others. Hall said revenue agents were investigating reports that shiploads of contraband alcohol valued as high as $10,000,000 was brought into Mexico and disposed of in California, Oregon and Washington.

Relief supplies from New Haven were distributed to refugees at Willimantic and Hartford, where several hundred persons were without food or shelter.

Other rivers in Connecticut were flooding. A thousand WPA workers were cleaning up debris. Conditions in Concord, capital of New Hampshire, were fully as serious as in the disastrous flood of 1927. Highway and rail transportation was cut off.

In Haverhill, Mass., also on the Merrimack, 358 families were ordered from their homes. The water supply of Lawrence, Mass., was imperiled.

When the mother left Delavan with the baby it was to file suit for separate maintenance. The grandfather filed a suit for a writ of habeas corpus, asking custody of the child.

But Judge Feinberg declared that the only point in issue was Juanita's fitness.

Opp's car was brought under control and stopped on Fourth street without further damage to it. It was removed to Grand Central garage for repair of damages resulting from its collision with the Heim car. Opp was uninjured, according to police reports. He said Marjorie Schorrey, Carolina street, Tustin, was his witness to the crash.

Young Heim, who said he is connected with the Dixie Castle, operated by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Heim sr., was given a drunk driving test by a local doctor and pronounced "moderately intoxicated." He said he had been drinking beer.

Ettie O. Oakley, owner of the furniture store and well-known here, who lives at the rear of the store, had been bowling last night and returned home shortly after the accident to find his store and equipment looking like a cyclone had swept it. He refused to permit removal of the Heim car from the store this morning.

Following the accident, which rendered Miss Goings unconscious for a few moments, Radio Patrolmen Charles Neer and Hunter Leach gave first aid treatment to the three injured and sent them to the hospital in Harrell and Brown ambulances.

The Heim car belongs to Heim sr., while the car owned by Ben R. Hart, Los Angeles is owner of the car Opp was driving.

Young Heim appeared before Justice Kenneth Morrison at noon today and was ordered to appear for preliminary hearing at 9 a. m., next Wednesday. Bail was set at $1000.

William Randolph Hearst, publisher, denied a temporary injunction earlier in the week, filed a second suit late yesterday to regain copies of his telegrams now in the senate's possession.

Hearst's complaint in District of Columbia supreme court charged "conspiracy" between the senate group and the federal communication commission to obtain his communications in violation of the first, fourth and fifth amendments to the constitution.

SLAIN BANDIT SENT UP FROM ORANGE COUNTY

The man known to Los Angeles police as Russell Morrow, 36, who was shot to death by an officer in an apartment house at 729 North Occidental boulevard yesterday, was George Van Baron, who was sent to San Quentin from Orange county in 1930 after a $36 check forgery at Anaheim.

Van Baron, who was released on parole from San Quentin January 20, after serving 5-1-2 years of a 10-year sentence, was shot yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Al Willey, of Los Angeles county, after Mrs. Gladys Thorsen, of the Occidental boulevard address, had summoned officers with a complaint that she and two young women were being annoyed by Van Baron, known as Russell.

When Officer Willey sought to place Van Baron under arrest, the convict drew a revolver and Willey then shot him.

Van Baron was sentenced for forgery in Orange county, July 7, 1930, after being convicted of passing a forged check for $36, drawn upon a Santa Ana bank, to H. T. Outland, of the Stevens-Van Engelen Company, at Anaheim. He had used a check-head of the Santa Ana Iron Works.

Rumors had even reached London of an imminent cabinet crisis in Paris.

GERMAN WILL SNUB LEAGUE BID, IS REPORT

BERLIN, March 14.—(UP)—Germany will not attend Monday's League of Nations council session in London, it was indicated today.

The United Press was informed the major factor prompting German impulse to decline the invitation is the fact that the reich was invited as a signatory of the Locarno treaty.

"Germany considers the Locarno pact dead and buried," an unofficial but well informed source pointed out.

The council's reply arrived at the chancellery late this afternoon but it was received after Fuehrer Adolf Hitler had taken off by airplane for Munich. The invitation has yet to reach the Fuehrer.

INVITATION TO GERMANY CARRIES RESERVATION

LONDON, March 14.—(UP)—Germany must assume all obligations of league of nations membership if she sits with the council Monday, it was revealed today.

The Little Entente and the Balkan Entente, during a secret session of the council this morning, attached an unwritten reservation to the invitation to Germany which makes acceptance by Chancellor Adolf Hitler most difficult.

Following a stormy session, the United Press learned, French Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin, Roumanian Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu and Turkish Foreign Minister Tewfik Rusti Aras insisted that German acceptance involve assumption of league membership obligations.

Despite the announcement of the fact that Germany was invited as a signatory of the Locarno treaty.

21 ARE FINED FOR VIOLATING TRAFFIC LAWS

Twenty-one persons, charged with 23 traffic offenses, were fined in City Judge J. G. Mitchell's court yesterday. Six speeders, one of whom was ticketed for driving 60 miles per hour in a 25-mile zone near Twentieth and Main, were among those fined.

One man, Sam R. Krause, 24, of Los Angeles, went to jail for 25 days for violation of the city ordinance which prohibits buying of old gold, silver and brass without license. On call of Mrs. Ella Campbell, 801 French street, that a man buying old gold and brass "forced his way into the house," Officers Harry Fink and Charles Wolford investigated. They discovered Krause in the act of making a purchase of old gold. Krause, with three companions who were not arrested, came from Los Angeles. In lieu of a $50 fine payment, the salesman went to jail.

The speeders were Lucille G. Frazer, 2017 Bush street, who paid $20 for the 60-mile-an-hour ticket

WESTERN AUTO OBSERVES ITS 20TH BIRTHDAY

In celebration of its debut 20 years ago, in the west, Western Auto Supply houses are now conducting a month-long anniversary sale, here and elsewhere, according to the Santa Ana store manager, Robert Harness, today.

Among many special sales features of the event are trade-in allowances on old tires, to purchasers of guaranteed Western Giants, and even house paints may be bought at prices materially lowered during the occasion, Harness said.

The history of Western Auto actually goes back to 1916, according to Harness, when George Peppertine, founder and president, first conceived the idea of selling accessories to meet all needs of auto owners. With only five dollars and a high ideal of service, Peppertine embarked in the new business, first at Kansas City. The business grew with amazing rapidity, but young Peppertine worked so hard his health broke and he was forced to sell the controlling interest in his thriving enterprise. He came to the west, and, recovering, began again. This time to continue through two depressions until today more than 275 stores serve motorists of 158 of the principal cities in 11 western states and Hawaii.

The success of all these stores, Harness declared, is attributable to the policies of honest values, fair dealing and guaranteed merchandise, laid down by Peppertine at the founding of the first store. The Santa Ana store is located at Main and Second streets.

PACKARD WILL HONOR LADIES ALL NEXT WEEK

Because it was due to women that many of the comforts, conveniences and ease in handling have been added to today's automobiles, the Packard Motor Car company has dedicated next week as "Ladies' Week" throughout the country, according to V. R. Byrne, local Packard dealer.

The automobile was certainly nothing for a woman to handle back in the first days of the motor car. Byrne said. "There was little thought given to comfort, and the driving of an early day horseless carriage was a job not only for a man but a strong man and one not afraid of soiling his hands with grease or his clothes with mud or dust."

"When the engineer recognized that women were going to drive automobiles, he began working on the ease of handling cars," Byrne continued. "Compared with today's automobiles, those of but a few years back steered like trucks. Were it not for the consideration the engineers have given to the women drivers, we probably would not now have the vacuum operated clutches such as are found on the big 175 horsepower Packard Twelve or the semi-centrifugal clutch on the Packard One Twenty, both of which permit the driver to disengage the clutch with a light touch of the foot."

"Many men nowadays spend half of their time in a motor car and they should doff their hats to the ladies in recognition of present day automobile improvements."

FORD SALES IN NATION EXCEED OTHERS IN 1935

More United States motorists purchased Ford V-8s in 1935 than any other car, according to figures sent to George Duntion, 810 North Main, local Ford dealer, this week from the Automotive Daily News, automobile industry trade paper. A 57.2 per cent Ford V-8 sales increase was registered in 1935 over 1934, in the United States, Duntion said, in pointing to a total of 1,065,002 units sold in 1935, as against 677,179 in 1934. V-8s by Ford sold in 1935, represented 31.1 per cent of the total number of cars sold in that year throughout the country.

In 1935, world sales totaled 1,311,927 units, gain of 5.16 per cent over 1934's 865,101 units. In Canada, sales of 1935 almost doubled those of 1934, jumping from 19,222 to 31,620.

"From the figures, it is evident Ford V-8's popularity is world-wide," Duntion said. "However, the domestic Ford totals reveal that the American people were largely responsible for Henry Ford's first 'million-year' since 1930. Sale of passenger cars rose from 538,710 to 861,646; commercial cars from 65,090 to 90,099, and trucks from 82,372 to 113,258."

Western Auto Observes 20th Birthday

Commemorating its founding in a western city twenty years ago, the Western Auto Supply Company is staging a huge anniversary event, according to the local manager of the firm. Special features of the current event are the introduction of new 1936 seat cover patterns, reduced prices on oil and batteries and a special trade-in allowance on old tires to purchasers of safe-treaded Western Giants.

Writing to Sell

BY ETHEL K. LOCKWOOD

SCENARIO WRITING

I have been asked to do an article on "Scenario Writing." I did not omit this from my series because I did not know anything about it, but because I considered the MARKETING of scenarios a dreary task for any writer—except possibly the top-notchers—and I dislike taking time to write about anything that has so little to offer the beginner.

However, there is a chance that you—or you—may have a moving picture story bottled up inside, and if you have, and it is a GOOD story, it will probably find a market.

Moving picture stories are bought from authors, book publishers, occasionally authors, but seldom from the outside writer who must pause here to tell you about a member of the California Writers' Guild, and the experience she has just had with a play.

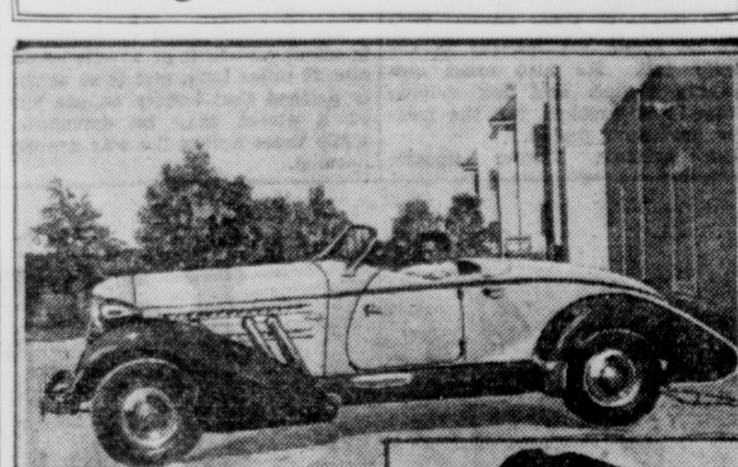

About two years ago this writer wrote a three-act play, had it produced by one of the little theaters, and one of the big studios took an option on it. After it had lain around that studio the better part of a year, the writer sent for it, and the studio returned it with the usual "regrets." Two weeks ago, she had a new play produced, and in the course of the publicity for the second play, the first play was mentioned. Several studios sent for copies of the first play, among them the studio that had had an option on it for a year, and had turned it down. Did she tell them they had already rejected that play? She did NOT. And it wouldn't be at all strange if they bought it—not in the moving picture business!

A writer who had come out here from New York, wrangled a writing job out of a certain studio. He stayed there a year, wondering when they were going to give him something to do besides bank his very moderate salary. More to kill time than anything else, he started writing a book. Suddenly he was fired. He returned to New York, finished the book, which caught the public's fancy, and actually returned to the studio that had dismissed him, apparently without their knowing he had been there before! And he returned at a fabulous fee to help the studio produce a story they might have had without any cost except his original moderate salary!

In the face of such amazing situations is it any wonder the beginning writer has such a poor bet in moving pictures? The whole writing system is too disorganized to be worth working for—unless, or until—you are selling material to book publishers or the magazines, at which time you should turn it over to an agent, and let

A King Listens While He Rides

DOES His Majesty, the King of Iraq, driving through Baghdad in his Philco radio-equipped automobile, compare his modern transportation with that of the fabulous Magic Carpet of Baghdad?

The Magic Carpet anticipated modern transportation methods in its conquest of distance, but to the modern mind leaves much to be desired in that it offered, alas, transportation sans music.

Now airplanes are provided with radio, most of our finest trains are radio-equipped, and 29 automobile manufacturers offer Philco as standard optional equipment on all cars. It is not surprising therefore that the modern-minded King of Iraq, who already had seven radios for his personal use in the palace, should have ordered another Philco installed in a recently purchased automobile.

him take the moving picture heart-break for you.

However, there are many writers who will go right on trying to break into pictures, and what advice I have to give shall be given freely.

If it is humanly possible, see your story in print before you send it to a moving picture studio. And before you send ANY story to ANY studio, query the writing department and ask if they will read your material. Then, if you are assured they will (which is usually the case with the exception of the very large studios), send a letter with your script, and address the letter to the man or woman who answered the first letter you sent. You have then jumped the hurdle of "unsolicited scripts."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

—News Behind the News—

By PAUL MALLON
(Copyright, 1936, by Paul Mallon)

HEAT WAVE

MADISON, Wis., March 14.—Hotter than the Hagood case out here in the LaFollette country is the celebrated case of Glenn Frank.

All that has emerged on it so far has come through a keyhole, but those who have been able to get near the keyhole have observed that Washington is not the only locality in which political temperatures are rising.

What happened was this: Mr. Frank, the nationally known president of the University of Wisconsin, made a speech last Lincoln day to a gathering of New York Republicans. He said some unkind things about the New Deal.

About a week ago he was privately informed by a member of the board of regents of his university that the official ax was about to fall on him. The objections to him included the charge that he had been making too many speeches.

PREPARATIONS

Now, Mr. Frank is not the kind of university president to stand around and let an ax descend on him without resentment. Apparently he had heard the stories that all the other insiders around town had heard, namely: That Governor Phil LaFollette, the Progressive and unofficial ally of President Roosevelt, had prepared the guillotine for him.

It is apparently true that LaFollette had appointed five new regents lately who share his lack of regard for Mr. Frank. It is also apparently true that three of these regents saw Governor LaFollette lately and got the idea that the state house would not be draped in mourning if the regents decided to part company with the nationally known president of the university.

DEFENSE

This meeting was secret, but those who sat in on it heard an extensive statement from Mr. Frank. He confessed he was a Republican, proved that he had not participated in party politics. He said a suggestion had been presented to him that he try to get the presidential delegates from this state, also that he prepare himself to be keynoter of the Republican national convention. He declined both suggestions. He pointed to the growth of the university under 11 years of his management, showed that he had made only 137 speeches in 11 years, which is a record even Nicholas Murray Butler cannot tie. Most important, he suggested "another force" outside the university was behind the movement against him. No further description was needed to identify Governor LaFollette.

That spoiled the guillotine, for the time being at least.

RESULT

What the situation has boiled down to now is this: The press reaction against gubernatorial interference in the administration of the university has been very strong. It is doubtful that Governor LaFollette will choose to force the issue. The whole matter may be delayed until after the election next year, when Mr. Frank will probably retire of his own volition to accept some of the offers which have been made.

CHOICE

Industrialists and financiers are quietly discussing an angle of the proposed corporation surplus tax which may produce a more revolutionary effect than any phase mentioned at the White House or the treasury.

The question they're asking is: What will Henry Ford and certain other industrial bellwethers do under the new system? If Mr. Ford continues to store up a tremendous reserve, he will be subject to a terrific tax. Since he has only a few stockholders, he cannot distribute profits to them.

without forking over a large amount to the government.

But far-thinking students note two other possibilities — both startling. He can reduce the cost of his car or raise wages to standard few dream of today. In either event he will force competitors to follow suit. Other industries may face the same prospect, for each has a dominant group which may deem it desirable or expedient to revise its price and wage scales. If it works out that way, the tax may combine the fundamental features of the NRA and the "more abundant life."

JAIL

Short, stocky Maury Maverick has hatched a novel scheme for testing the McCormack disaffection bill should it become law. Recently the "liberal" Texas congressman explained his plan to certain prominent business men and their interest in the measure has noticeably cooled as a result.

The congressman, half seriously, half humorously, warned his hearers that the measure would have unexpected consequences for them. He pointed out that the President is also commander-in-chief of the army and navy. Therefore, according to Mr. Maverick's reasoning, any sharp criticism of presidential tax, budget or spending policies would subject the critic to the charge that he was spreading unpatriotic propaganda among the commander-in-chief's military and naval forces.

"Under such a law," pronounced Mr. Maverick, "I could jail the American Liberty League, the National Association of Manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States."

PRESSURE

George Norris' closest friends hope that his $420,000,000 rural electrification measure doesn't pass at this session of congress. The Nebraska senator would be astonished if he knew some of the people who were rooting against it.

Reason behind this attitude is the affection and admiration for the senate Progressive. The people secretly conspiring against the bill believe that Mr. Norris will stand for re-election next fall if his latest power proposal isn't written into law at this session. It is the final link in the chain which he has steadily forged on behalf of a larger supply and cheaper rates to the consumer. It's the tail of the TVA kite.

Although nobody around the White House will admit it, there are some who think that President Roosevelt himself would not be disappointed if the measure got lost in the shuffle between now and adjournment time. The relationship between the senator and President is almost a father-and-son affair.

PARACHUTE JUMPER
AT MARTIN AIRPORT

Preparing for an attack upon his own record, Troy Colbeck, world's champion parachute jumper, will give an exhibition Sunday at the Eddie Martin airport. Colbeck will make a series of jumps starting at 3:30 p. m.

According to Dale Deckert, of the airport, Colbeck, who holds the world's record of 18 consecutive jumps, will attempt to beat his own record in just three weeks. The jumps Sunday will be made to test new equipment to be used in the official attack on his record.

Deckert said that the official attempt to beat his own record will be made by Colbeck, at the Martin airport before officials of the National Aeronautic association, making the new record, if one is certain, official.

Colbeck believes that by starting at daybreak, using two parachutes and having a ground crew to pack them for him, he can make at least 50 jumps before it becomes too dark to make further attempts.

Spades are trumps in above suit is headed by the King, Queen, double dummy hand and can win all tricks against any defense. South leads the diamond queen. West covers and North wins. North now cashes in his heart king, South discarding the five of diamonds. North leads the Jack of Hearts. If East ruffs, South overruffs. South leads his high trump, North discards the diamond three. Last trump is now led and a double squeeze is effected. If East discards a diamond or club instead of ruffing the Jack of Hearts, South discards his diamond and then ruffs the second diamond. South leads club to ace and on last two tricks East's minor trump tenace is picked up by any lead from North. We will have another double dummy soon.

In playing No-trump, the most serious danger for the Declarer is the running of an adverse suit. When the closed hand and the Dummy combined possess but one stopper of the suit that is led, the game possibilities of even a strong No-trumper is seriously threatened. If that stopper be played on the first trick, the adverse suit is established; and, unless Declarer can win the next eight tricks (in most deals difficult if not impossible), the adversaries will save the game whenever the original lead has been made with a five-card suit.

The Declarer can avoid this danger somewhat by postponing the play of the card that stops the adverse suit until the partner of the leader has no more of the suit, then if the partner be the opponent to obtain the lead, he cannot lead the original suit and thus save game. After having held up the stop card until the partner of the leader cannot recapture the original suit, every effort should be made by Declarer to keep the original leader from regaining the lead.

Suppose the Declarer's only long

OPERETTA OF
DRAWS CROWD

By MILDRED WATSON

ORANGE, March 14.—Marked by music of unusual quality and by beautiful dancing, the annual operetta of the Orange Union High school music department was staged last night under the baton of Percy Green. A large crowd attended.

"In Old Vienna," the three-act comedy chosen for this year's production, contains in itself excellent musical numbers which were remarkably suited to the high school voices. In addition, "The Silver Lining," written for the presentation by Miss Phyllis Lucy Kyes, local teacher, provided a duet number for Norma La Ferney and Llewellyn Williams, whose roles were speaking parts only in the original libretto.

The sweet voice of Phyllis Kogler in the role of Ilona, the gypsy, blended perfectly with that of Marvethere Wood as Lady Vivian in the duet which marked the climax of the play, and the solo numbers of both were well done. The quality of Eleanor Kolkhorst's voice was brought out especially in her duets with Robert Kreidt and in her soprano obbligato to chorus numbers.

Dick Harbottle, as J. Jenson Jones, was outstanding in stage presence, showing the same earnestness which marked his leading role in the Junior play last year. Good enunciation was also noted in the work of Robert Kreidt and Llewellyn Williams, and the pantomime of Bill Jordan and Clarence Borchard as the police force increased in excellence as the play progressed.

In the gypsy camp Joe Farmer as Jigo, played his role with credit, and Phyllis Kogler sang her best solo number, with an off-stage choral accompaniment.

Wesley Marquart as Jonas Pennington and Frank Christian as Hans Maier were well cast and minor speaking parts were brought in with ease. Special credit is due Miss Helen Culp and Miss Grace Robertson of the physical education department for their staging of dances. The two solo dances of Ilona were done with grace and charm, and chorus groups were equally well handled.

Modern Life

THE 1936 PLATFORMS

A plea about platforms that I made about this time four years ago seems to me even more pertinent now.

It would mark a great advance in the rationalization of American politics if both the Democrats and the Republicans would present platforms short enough and simple enough that a man with even a bad memory, as Newton Baker once suggested, could carry them in his head.

1936 is no time for wasted words! The 1936 platforms should be short, sincere, simply stated, and strictly confined to current issues. These are by no means all of the elements that should go into drafting of the 1936 platforms, but strict adherence to these four points would enforce much of the rest that is needed.

A short platform would prevent so many rhetorical ramblings in the wilderness of hokum. If we took the Ten Commandments as a model, the whole psychology of platform making would be revolutionized.

A thoroughly sincere platform would be refreshing. Imagine the sort of platforms that might emerge from Philadelphia and Cleveland if the intelligence of these two conventions should say through these platforms what it really thinks! There would not be a straddled issue in either platform.

A strict confinement of the platforms to current issues would make it impossible for politicians to throw dust in the eyes of the electorate by waving the ancient garments of Washington, Jefferson and all the other dead rebels.

We voting millions do not insist upon intricate blue prints, but we do insist upon brief statements of exactly the policies the parties have in mind.

If the Democrats want to prove their Jeffersonianism, let them do it, not by eulogizing Jefferson, but by bringing his free and fertile intelligence to bear upon current problems.

If the Republicans want to prove their kinship to Lincoln, let them do it, not by lyrical praise of Old Abe, but by bringing his sanctified common sense to bear upon our immediate problems.

Let us hope that all windmills, blatherskites, demagogues, and point-with-prideers will be hooted from the conventions this year and that short, sincere, simply stated, and currently focussed platforms will emerge.

CONDITIONS IN ETHIOPIA TOLD BY COL. TUPPER

NEWPORT HEIGHTS, March 14.—"Ethiopia" was the subject of a talk given in the Newport Harbor Union High school auditorium Thursday by Col. Wilbur S. Tupper as the second number of the Adult Education course. He was introduced by Sidney H. Davidson, principal of the school.

Colonel Tupper described the Ethiopians as a mixture of the Hemitic, the Semitic and Negroid races and one of the oldest Christian nations in the world. Their methods of living are very similar to those of the people of Christ's time, he said. The fact they they are poorly equipped for war and that Italy already owns territory skirting two sides of the nation accounts for Italy's aggressive move into Ethiopia.

The outcome of Italy's venture is yet in doubt, the speaker said, owing to climatic conditions and disease prevalent there, he said.

It was announced that Mrs. Evadne K. Perry, supervisor of art for Orange county schools, will be the speaker at next Thursday's meeting.

her. "The name is Jamieson—Timothy Jamieson."

She wrote it down. Twenty rhinestone clips at $2.98 each," she said. "That's—let's see—$59.60."

Tim Jamieson nodded. "Will you—er—have them sent?" The address he gave was one which even Toby knew was fashionable. She nodded. "The package will be delivered in the morning, Mr. Jamieson. Thank you very much. And I hope you like your clips."

"But, see here—"

"Was there anything else you wanted?"

"Yes," he said, "there's something I want very much. I want you to have dinner with me tonight. I'll be waiting for you—any time you say. Or, if you'd rather, I'll pick you up somewhere—"

Toby smiled, but shook her head. "I'm sorry," she said. "I can't."

"Oh, but you'll change your mind! A girl like you couldn't be so hard-hearted. Now, listen, when the store closes I'll be waiting for you."

Toby didn't bother to object to that. A customer had paused at the other end of the counter and she hurried toward her. When she looked back a little later the young man was gone.

But the day that had begun in such an ordinary fashion had more in store for Toby Ryan—much more.

The oddest thing about it was that it all happened so naturally. It was a few minutes past 3 when Miss Burrows, the jewelry buyer, approached Toby. "The artists have finished with those watches we sent up to have sketched for the Saturday advertisement," she said. "Will you go up and bring them down? Ask for Mr. Keller. He'll get them for you."

Toby said, "Yes, Miss Burrows." She knew exactly what to do; she had gone on such errands before. Toby stepped into the elevator and said, "Ninth floor." She liked going to the advertising office. It was so different from the rows and rows of counters on the first floor.

She entered the big room, hesitated, and then went up to the nearest desk. "Is Mr. Keller here?" Toby asked.

The door of a private office opened just then and a man stepped out. It was Mr. Keller, the art director, and Toby recognized him. She hurried forward. "Miss Burrows sent me for the watches that were sketched," she said.

"Oh, yes." The art director crossed to a desk, picked up four tiny watches attached to bracelets. Three of them were yellow gold discs. The fourth was the handsomest "debutante special," white gold with tiny diamonds gleaming on either side of the oblong face. "Here they are," he said, and put them in Toby's hand.

She looked down at the watches. The glittering handful, she knew, was worth something like $250. A minute later Toby stood in the hallway, waiting for the elevator to take her to the first floor.

ORANGE COUNTY FREE LIBRARY NEWS NOTES

By Dorothy E. Wents, County Librarian

Whenever two or three people meet, conversations usually travel in following course: First, a few words about the weather; next, a few words about one's state of health (often the mind is included); next, some remarks about local affairs, followed by questions as to whether or not one has seen the latest movie, play, concert, dancer, etc. And then, whether they will it or no, slowly but surely, the talk swings around to politics, national and international. Because the process of reading requires that we at least look at a printed page for a certain length of time, most of us are certain to carry over and retain a few ideas. There is also the possibility that we can "see through" ideas of others better on the printed page than we can when listening to political speeches, lectures, radio addresses, and what not. Then isn't the danger of being carried away by the "nice-sounding" voice, or the "nice appearance" of the writer as there is with the speaker.

Hell Bent for Election is the somewhat flippant title James R. Warburg has given to his latest book. An eminent banker, vice-chairman of the Manhattan company of New York, economic adviser to the London conference, and one of the economic advisers to the president until the fall of 1933, Mr. Warburg states clearly and emphatically his reasons for not voting again for Roosevelt in 1936. A slight volume, 78 pages in length, to be exact, "Hell Bent for Election" will be read by Republicans, Democrats and Socialists, who, as Mr. Warburg succinctly states, "voted against Roosevelt." One sentence caught our attention: "Probably the reaction produced in the reader by what I have said so far is one of unpleasant surprise at the degree to which Mr. Roosevelt has fulfilled the promises of the Socialist platform." Mr. Warburg is the author of numerous other books on textiles and manufacturing, as well as two recent books on economics, "The Money Muddle" and "It's Up to Us."

"Nine old men," the phrase used by critics of the supreme court justices should be changed to "nine honest men" in the opinion of David Lawrence, author of Nine Honest Men. David Lawrence is one of the most able newspapermen in the country. A one-time staff member of the Associated Press in Washington, he later became Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post. At present he is the editor of the highly influential United States News, a weekly publication devoted exclusively to government news. As a daily contributor to 115 newspapers over the country, Mr. Lawrence has a national reputation as an interpreter of national affairs. "Nine honest men" presents a popular study of supreme court problems and recent supreme court decisions. It is written for the average American who wants to know more about the supreme court and its members and who may eventually look to the court for the salvation of his business or his home. By "honest men," Mr. Lawrence means men who are incapable of being influenced by either politics or political opinion.

"The best political news in years," so Lewis Gannett of the New York Herald-Tribune describes Sweden: The Middle Way, by Marquise Childs. A very realistic report of the economic programs that are being carried out in Sweden in 1936, Mr. Childs gives an excellent and complete picture of the adjustments that Sweden has made to the machine age. Moreover, he shows how a people can solve their economic problems by an exercise of common sense and reason. He takes up in separate chapters various subjects, such as "The Beginning of Co-operation," "Low Cost Housing," "The State in Industry," "Labor Control That Works," "Socialists, King, and Capitalists." Through state ownership and state competition, through consumers' co-operation, producers' co-operation and an all-inclusive labor movement, "capitalism" has been made to work for the greatest good of the whole nation. However, Mr. Childs is cautious in his statements as to the lesson of Sweden for the rest of the world. "The wisdom of Sweden lies above all in their willingness to adjust, to compromise, to meet what appears to be reality," so writes Mr. Childs. The World Almanac for 1936 shows 1,562,703 Swedes in the United States. We think a lot of our present difficulties would be overcome if there were a few more million people with the Swedish traits.

Insurgent America, or the Revolt of the Middle Classes, by Alfred M. Bingham, is in effect a campaign document for a third-party movement in the 1936 election. Mr. Bingham, a Yale graduate, is at present executive secretary of the American commonwealth Federation, and since 1932 has been co-editor of "Common Sense," a magazine of advanced political views. Mr. Bingham attempts to show that even though capitalism has failed, Marxism is not suited to the psychology of twentieth century America. We have read and heard more than one statement similar to the above, which makes us wonder why there is always so much excitement over these "Red" scares. A recent remark, Mr. Childs states: "Revolutions are never imported. Social changes seldom follow any pattern that is sought to be imposed from without. They grow from roots that are way down in the native soil." Doesn't that alleviate still more the fear of a foreign domination?

We are not satisfied in trying to fathom the situation in our own country, alone, but we must know, too, of the causes behind the political turmoil in Europe, and more particularly, of the men responsible for the turmoil. John Gunther in Inside Europe has given us a detailed "who's who" of Europe today. Gunther is the European correspondent for the Chicago Daily News. Walter Duranty writes: "If I was asked what was Gunther's supreme quality, I'd say it was clear-sighted dispassionate judgement of men and events." You will agree with Duranty, after reading this book. Beginning with Hitler, the author takes us on a trip around Germany, then to France, on the verge of Fascism; to Italy, with its Ethiopian complex; to England, where the Laborites and Conservatives are struggling; to Russia. Mr. Gunther traveled over 5,000 miles in 1935 to write this book, visiting every capital he discusses. An intensely absorbing book.

Modern Poets

By MISS BEULAH MAY

Who Loves a Garden, by Louise Seymour Jones, Primavera Press. If you like the things I like and you probably do, for you are reading this column, here is a book after your own heart. The author has for many years lived in gardens, both in books and those of her beloved Redlands. These beautifully written essays are filled with the garden lore of the past but flying through the pages is the California mocking bird and yellow poppies not just beyond her blue gate. Here is much information that seems very important—about Tussie Mussel and Squinancy, of how Peter the Great took his exercise among Sir John Evelyn's yews, and what happened when a row of excited angels sat on a rainbow. If you have too many possessions you will feel for the old lady who hoarded hat boxes and cluttered herself out of her home. But through all this whimsy there shines the serenity and kindness of one who loves a garden and in it has found peace. The book is dedicated to her father, Horatio Winslow Seymour, editor and publisher of newspapers for 50 years, in Chicago, St. Louis and New York. Unexpectedly, here and there, a poem pops up.

RELAXATION
I like to relax the garden knows
When Summer walks the mead,
In wanton shooer of falling leaves,
A symbol of the need

FILM VERSION OF NOTED BOOK STARTS FRIDAY

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," one of America's best-loved stories, comes to the screen of the West Coast theater next Friday in a spectacular technicolor version starring Sylvia Sydney, Fred MacMurray and Henry Fonda.

Based on the novel by John Fox, Jr., "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is a tale of hill folk in the Cumberland mountains, and the feuds that set family to fighting family—for causes long since forgotten. More than 90 per cent of the picture was filmed outdoors at Big Bear Lake, Calif. Location scouts toured the Pacific coast as far north as Oregon, seeking mountains and terrain closely resembling the original setting of the story, and finally locating the lake site.

Henry Hathaway, who directed "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," was director of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." Under his supervision, an entirely new technique was devised for the new three-color motion picture process. Believing that past efforts in this line suffered from overemphasis on color, and underemphasis on story, Hathaway adopted the opposite method, concentrating on story values and allowing color to remain the subordinate element it actually is in life.

SEA DRAMA AND COMEDY HERE ON THURSDAY

The film presents Miss Sidney and Fonda as members of the same mountain clan, who all their lives have loved each other and warred together on a neighboring family. Ancient ways are changed, however, when MacMurray, a young engineer, arrives to construct a railroad line through their hills.

He wins Miss Sidney's heart, while Fonda, in bewilderment, sees the collapse of his only code he knows—to fight and kill for what he loves. The film reaches a climax when Fonda sets out after MacMurray, and the rival clan simultaneously sets out after Fonda.

PAUL MUNI DRAMA, MYSTERY END RUN

"The Story of Louis Pasteur," thrilling dramatized biography of the life of the famous French scientist, shows for the last time tonight at the Broadway theater along with a second feature, "The Preview Murder Mystery."

Paul Muni has the title role in "The Story of Louis Pasteur" which is classed as one of the outstanding dramas of the year. The cast includes such favorites as Josephine Hutchinson, Anita Louise, Donald Woods, Fritz Leiber, Dickie Moore and Henry O'Neill. The film has poignant charm, romantic appeal and the thrill of adventure. It tells the life story of the great scientist whose theory that germs cause and carry disease was scorned and ridiculed.

"The Preview Murder Mystery" is an engrossing and thrilling mystery drama of murder in a movie studio and of efforts to solve a series of gruesome crimes which sweep over Hollywood. In the cast are such players as Reginald Denny, Red LaRocca, Frances Drake, Conway Tearle and George Barbier.

For rest... aye
Rest for man and garden,
Little cat-nap for the rose,
Delphiniums now lie down
And pink their petals close;
'Tis nature's law,
All life must pause
Ere work it can resume,
From reticence, the golden word,
From fallow root, the bloom.

"RAINMAKERS" AND DRAMA TO SHOW AT STATE

A Kay Francis drama, "I Found Stella Parish," and a Wheeler and Woolsey farce, "The Rainmakers," are scheduled for showing at Walker's State theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The drama presents Miss Francis in the role of a famous actress who topples from the heights of success to the depths of despair, as she fights to conceal a page in her life to protect her six-year-old daughter from scandal. A journalist with whom she has fallen in love, played by Ian Hunter, learns her story and prints it, then spends his time trying to undo the damage he has caused.

Paul Lucas has the role of the actress' theatrical manager and suitor. Sybil Jason plays the daughter, Jessie Ralph is the trusted nurse with whom the actress leaves her child, and Barton MacLane is the blackmailing husband.

SEA DRAMA AND COMEDY HERE ON THURSDAY

The hilarious adventures of a handsome and amorous ghost who accompanies a haunted Scottish castle to America, are depicted in an amusing fashion in "The Ghost Goes West," gay romantic comedy which brings Robert Donat to the screen of the Broadway theater next Thursday, it was announced today. Second feature on the program is "Dangerous Waters," starring Jack Holt.

Jean Parker, Eugene Pallette and other favorites are in the cast of "The Ghost Goes West." Donat, who made screen history in "The Count of Monte Cristo," plays an impoverished Scotch nobleman who sells his haunted ancestral castle to an American millionaire and also plays the jolly castle ghost. The millionaire has the castle razed and transported to New York, and the ghost, being a very conscientious shade, packs up and trails along. Complications develop when the ghost turns up aboard the liner and is mistaken for Donat, whom he very closely resembles. The film reaches a climax when the millionaire, who plans to use the ghost to publicize Martin's Fine Foods, holds a reception for the press in the ludicrously restored and modernized castle.

"Dangerous Waters" is a swiftly paced thrilling adventure picture, made exciting by scenes of fire and mutiny at sea. Jack Holt has the role of a sea captain, a forceful figure who is helpless in the hands of his faithless bride, Grace Bradley. The object of the bride's blandishments is Robert Armstrong. The action takes place on the high seas and the narrative is filled with exciting incidents, including a terrific gale which rages.

ACTION FILM FRIDAY
"Branded a Coward" is the title of the screen feature at Walker's State theater next Friday and Saturday, which presents Johnny Mack Brown in the leading role. Billie Seward is the leading lady in this story of the fight against fear made by a frontier city marshal of the old west.

MUSIC COMEDY, SMART COMEDY, COURT DRAMA FRONTIER FILM AT WEST COAST BEGIN SUNDAY

Featuring the inimitable team of Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler at the head of an all-star cast, the brilliant new musical comedy, "Colleen," is now showing at the West Coast theater with a second big feature, "The Voice of Bugle Ann," thrilling courtroom drama starring Lionel Barrymore.

The notable cast in "Colleen" includes Jack Oakie, Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda, Paul Draper, Marie Wilson, Luis Alberni and Hobart Cavanaugh. The plot concerns the absurdities of an eccentric and elderly millionaire with a penchant for acting as godfather to young ladies of aspiring ambitions. It is a romantic comedy with emphasis on the comedy side, introducing a number of elaborate musical numbers which are lively and tuneful. Music and lyrics for the musical comedy were written by Harry Warren and Al Dubin, while the spectacular dance numbers were staged by Bobby Connelly. Colorful backgrounds are used for the elaborate dance routines.

One of the most amazing tributes to the dog as a friend of man is given in "The Voice of Bugle Ann," based on the famous novel of the old hunter who kills a man and goes to prison to avenge the death of his faithful hound. Barrymore plays the central role of Spring Davis, the dog owner, and in the courtroom scene voices a gripping and dramatic tribute to dogs as friends of man. A romance between Eric Linden and Maureen O'Sullivan runs through the haunting story. Spring Byington, Charles Grainger, Dudley Digges, Henry Wadsworth and other popular players are in the cast.

"PETER IBBETSON" OPENS WEDNESDAY

Ann Harding and Gary Cooper are starred in the fantastic drama of romance, "Peter Ibbetson," which will be screened next Wednesday and Thursday at Walker's State theater with a second feature film, "Waterfront Lady."

The story of the romance is taken from the opera by the same name and concerns a tale of the dream world in which lovers from childhood are able to meet after tragedy and circumstance has parted them. Their love is so strong that it overcomes every obstacle in its path. Though doomed to be separated from each other save for brief moments together in childhood and again as grownup sweethearts, this man and woman spend their lives together in a dream world of their own making. "Dreaming true" is the expression used to describe their meetings in the dream world.

Ann Rutherford, Frank Albertson, Barbara Pepper, J. Farrell MacDonald, Grant Withers, Charles Wilson, Jack LaRue and Mary Gordon are in the cast of "Waterfront Lady." This film concerns the romance of a young couple whose lives are set against the background of the fishing fleet.

Hard riding, heroic rescues and exciting moments are plentiful in "Lawless Riders," which may be seen on the screen of Walker's State theater for the last time tonight.

Ken Maynard, popular outdoor picture star, acts and rides expertly and lends variety to the story with his tricks with his famous horse. Bank robberies, kidnappings and daring exploits are highlights of the film.

"Old Mother Hubbard," a cartoon; "Just Another Murder," a comedy; a news reel and a chapter of "The Phantom Empire" complete the program.

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1936

Former Local Resident Has Pretty Party

Opportunity to inspect the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Garlock at 3531 Percy street, Los Angeles, was given guests of Mrs. Garlock this week at a layette shower honoring Mrs. Albert Blower, Cypress avenue, Santa Ana. The hostess will be remembered as Miss Frances Birtcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justus Birtcher of this city.

Stocks in three shades of pink brightened rooms of the home, suggested a pretty theme which was observed in all details. Blue bowls of candies and nuts were on the tables where bridge was played. Tallies of appropriate design were distributed for cards.

Gifts for Mrs. Blower were piled high on the highly polished walnut dining table. Linen-spread tables were centered with pink and blue vases of flowers for the refreshment interval, when nut cups were in pink and blue. Bavarian china in pink and blue design was used in serving ice cream nut rolls with stork centers, home-made cookies and other dainties.

Neighborhood Group
Enjoys Birthday
Tea

Mr. and Mrs. George Bond's hospitable home, 507 East Myrtle street, was scene of a neighborhood tea Thursday afternoon celebrating the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Caley Jackson. The occasion also marked the anniversary of Justus Birtcher, 424 East Myrtle street, who was unable to be present but who was remembered with gifts from the group.

Hostesses Receive
Amber Circle Members

Cordial welcome to some sixty guests was extended Thursday by a group of Amber Circle members who entertained at luncheon in Masonic temple as a prelude to an afternoon of bridge and needlework. Mrs. Ethel DeWolfe, chairman, had as her assisting hostesses, Mesdames Elizabeth Fairfield, Anna Gale, Ida Goodwin, Anna Kester, Lena Hoyt, Jeffie Hosea and Linna Hanson.

Santa Ana Is Prominent At Matrix Table

Santa Ana was well represented last night in the Garden room of the Beverly Hills Victor Hugo where Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary and professional fraternity for women in journalism, entertained at its second "Matrix Table."

John ("Sky") Dunlap, formerly of the Register staff but now of the Los Angeles office of United Press, was present with Mrs. Dunlap, as were John McCoy, also a former Register member, Mrs. McCoy, Eleanor Young Elliott, Mrs. William Fritcher, Miss Mary Bell, Miss Inez Ettinger and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pinkerton. Miss Bell, as a member of the fraternity and prominent in journalistic work of the U.S.C. campus, had part in ceremonies during the evening, when half a dozen journalism students were pledged to fraternity membership. Miss Bell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bell, 1824 North Ross street.

Miss Martha Williams, president of Alpha Omicron chapter, presided over the program hour at which various speakers representing Southland newspapers and the writing world in general, were introduced. Especially interesting were Miss Kismet Sirri, young Turkish girl now studying at U.S.C., who met with such success upon her recent appearance before Santa Ana Ebell society; Judge Harlan G. Palmer, publisher of the Hollywood Citizen-News, where a former city editor of the Register, Herman Reuter, is now engaged in an editorial capacity; Dixie Williams, formerly a member of the Ringling Brothers circus, now a magazine writer of note; and Brian Bell, Pacific coast chief of bureau for the Associated Press.

Contract Club Guest
Returns Courtesies
With Party

Having been a guest on many occasions of the Thursday Contract club, Mrs. Samuel M. Davis Thursday returned the hospitality of club members by entertaining them in turn, in her home, 2432 Riverside Drive. At the same time she invited a little group of those who have from time to time, shared with her, the pleasure of attending some of the club sessions.

Mrs. Davis is fortunate in having a garden that is now a-bloom with sweet peas, and her whole home was fragrant with the beautiful blossoms. Their bright colors served as a dessert course with which the afternoon of contract was preceded. Because of the unusual warmth of the afternoon, guests found a refreshing fruitade served later during the bridge sessions, most enjoyable. At the close of contract play, Mrs. Davis presented a prize for high score to Mrs. E. M. Nealley of the club group, and a similar gift to Mrs. James S. Smart who scored high among the guests.

Magnolia Camp Plans
District Hub Meeting

Many interesting plans are being made for the district "Hub" meeting of Royal Neighbors of America, which will be held with Magnolia camp of Santa Ana Monday night, March 23 in Modern Woodman hall, it was announced today.

The different camps of Orange county will meet on that day, which also will mark the birthday anniversary of the society of Royal Neighbors. Initiation rites will be conducted by Oracle Gertrude Birt of Magnolia camp.

Officers of the hostess camp report that members are working diligently on the new campaign, which will terminate April 30 at which time the convales will be held in Civic auditorium, Pasadena. Mrs. Pearl Laub, Magnolia drill captain, is getting her team in readiness to represent Magnolia camp at the convention.

A feature of the latest meeting of Magnolia organization was presentation of a set of eight crystal sherpets to Mrs. Laub, by Mrs. Lenore Farmer, past oracle. This was recognition of the former's success in acquiring the greatest number of policies during the 1935 state campaign, in which Magnolia camp was winner of the state banner.

Benefit Party Plans
Revealed Today by Woman's Club

Although as chairman of the ways and means committee of Woman's club of Santa Ana, Mrs. J. F. Jacoby has perfected all arrangements for a benefit luncheon to be held Friday, April 29 in Veterans hall, she will not be here to enjoy the fruits of her labors. For both Mr. and Mrs. Jacoby were leaving today for Illinois to be gone for several weeks.

However, all details of the luncheon are so carefully planned, that those heading the various committees will continue these plans, and an unusually pleasant and successful event is being anticipated by the clubwomen. Luncheon is to be served at 1 o'clock and will be enlivened by a spring fashion revue in which various of the members will take part. The afternoon will be given over to games, with tables arranged for contract and auction bridge and for anagrams.

The party is to be open to members and their friends and all those interested in a social afternoon. Reservations must be made not later than Tuesday afternoon, through any one of the three members of the reservations committee, Mrs. John J. Vernon, chairman, at 4243W; Mrs. May Walder, 5335W, or Mrs. Margaret Ahern, 5123W.

Mrs. Ethel Brown is general chairman of the party plans and will carry the duties of Mrs. Jacoby in heading the hostess group. Those taking part in the after-luncheon games program will compete for special prizes which will be the handiwork of Mrs. Jacoby and will go for high scores in each of the three game groups. Players will pivot rather than progress. On the ways and means committee with Mrs. Jacoby are Mesdames John J. Vernon, Richard Pagett, Margaret Ahern, R. G. Carman and Walter Powers.

Smart Events
Arranged For Bridal Party

These final spring days before the wedding of Miss Barbara Dunton and Paul Hales, (a much anticipated function of Friday evening, March 20) are being made a continual round of gaiety for the lovely young bride-elect, daughter of the George Duntons, 1352 East Fourth street.

Miss Dunton's popularity on the Junior College campus has been expressed by the interest with which her friends there have been hastened to complement her at pre-bridal parties and showers. This week has been made especially interesting by more intimate affairs.

Trousseau Luncheon

The first of these was Thursday, when the charming girls who will comprise the wedding attendants, were entertained at luncheon in the Dunton home, with Miss Barbara assisted by her mother, Mrs. Dunton, and her grandmother, Mrs. Florence Matthews, in receiving.

Spring flowers for a spring bride seemed to be the general decorative motif, and blossoms in softly brilliant hues graced the table where places were indicated for Miss Georgina Irvin, Mrs. Joseph A. Knox (Marjorie Marble) and Miss Dorothy Gowdy, who will be bridesmaids Friday night, and for the bride-to-be, Miss Dunton, with Mrs. Dunton and Mrs. Matthews.

Unforgetably Miss Betty Dunton, who will be her sister's maid of honor, was unable to be present because of the demands upon her time, of classwork and studies at Pomona college. Trousseau sewing and the amusing game of "Monopoly" provided after-luncheon entertainment, and the guests were privileged to see shower gifts presented the bride, as well as the lovely things of her trousseau.

At Biltmore Bowl

On Thursday evening, Mr. Dunton took upon himself the duties of dinner host, arranging a small dinner and dancing party at the Biltmore Bowl for his bride-daughter. The party comprised just an intimate half dozen, Mr. and Mrs. Dunton, Miss Barbara and her fiancé, Mr. Hales, Miss Betty Dunton and Clifford Smith, who motored down from Pomona college to join the party at the bowl.

Friday night's wedding is to be a formal event at 8 o'clock in United Presbyterian church, with the Rev. A. E. Kelly officiating. Almost 200 invitations have been issued for the rites.

O. E. S. Members
Attend Guest Nights

Guest night observances on the part of various Orange county chapters, Order of Eastern Star, are attracting visitors from both Hermosa and Santa Ana chapters this week. Tonight both organizations will be well represented by officers and members at Fullerton chapter's annual party night.

Thursday evening, when La Habra chapter entertained, guests included from this city Miss Henrietta Bohling and Mrs. Flora Bruns, worthy matrons of Hermosa and Santa Ana chapters, respectively. Mrs. Bruns was accompanied by three of her officers, Mesdames Betty Gowdy, Isabel Garthe and Jane Morse. Hermosa chapter members included the worthy patron, Wilford G. Lewis, with Mrs. Lewis, Mesdames Helen Lurker, Etta Sweet and Nell D. Winslow, while accompanying the Santa Anans, was Mabel Lambert, worthy matron of Laguna Beach chapter.

Santa Anans Depart

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jacoby, 125 East Pomona street, left today on an interesting three weeks' motor trip, accompanying Mrs. Jacoby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Marshall, back to their home in Robinson, Ill. The Marshalls have been spending the winter months in the Jacoby home, having arrived in Santa Ana in November, well in time to enjoy Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays in the Southland.

After reaching Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Jacoby will continue their travels to Detroit, Mich., where a new automobile is awaiting them, in which they will make the return trip to Santa Ana. They will come home through Kansas, stopping in Independence for a brief visit with Mr. Jacoby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Jacoby, and other relatives, and then drop southward to the famous Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico, Albuquerque and Boulder Dam are included on their itinerary for the return trip.

Marine Theme Is Adapted To Dinner-Bridge

So attractively was the marine theme applied to a dinner and bridge party at which Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yost, 508 Wellington avenue, were hosts Thursday night in Hotel Laguna in "Our Village," that the affair easily takes place as one of the most interesting parties of the spring's social calendar.

Mr. and Mrs. Yost had reserved the picturesque "Marine Room" of the hotel for their hospitality, and the sea itself seemed to co-operate, for the surf ran so high that the beat of the waves formed an unceasing obbligato to the dinner hour and its subsequent contract play.

Deep sea blue was stressed in the floral decorative effect, with the yacht motif uppermost in such details as place cards and similar table appointments. An accent of red was introduced in the blue and white flowers massed in the center of the long table where guests were grouped for a delicious dinner menu, admirably served.

Cleverly designed place cards were written by the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Yost, and for Mesdames J. H. Daniger, Elmo Sundquist, Frank Harwood, E. T. McFadden, Henry Williams, Harry Welsh of Fullerton, Walter O. Hill, Paul Ragan, William Stauffer, Harold Nelson and Dr. and Mrs. Hubert B. Nail.

The seafaring motif of the evening again found expression in tissues and ribbons of the prize awards, for which scores of husbands and wives were combined. To Mr. and Mrs. Welsh went first prize, with Mr. and Mrs. Williams taking second honors.

Southern Cookery
Lends Theme for
U. D. C. Event

Mammy's lullaby and mammy's Southern cooking claimed the interest of members of Emma Stanton chapter U. D. C. Thursday afternoon when a monthly luncheon was held in the home of Mrs. W. L. Dugan, 222 South Sycamore street.

Since Southern Cookery was the topic for the day, covers comprising the noon-day covered-dish luncheon were luscious indeed. Southern cook books were displayed, and to Mrs. E. C. Martin went honors for exhibiting the oldest collection of recipes, representing Kentucky of 65 years ago. Favorite recipes were exchanged during the afternoon, and a cooked food sale was held.

Adding enjoyment to the luncheon hour were Mrs. J. P. Williams' vocal solos, "Kentucky Babe," "Don't You Cry, My Honey," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," "Uncle Ned," "Swanee River," "Old Black Joe" and "Dixie." She was accompanied by Mrs. Charles Nalle. Mrs. Ray B. Stedman and Mrs. William Bates were elected delegates. Mrs. A. C. Violet and Mrs. Guy Miller, alternates, to the U. D. C. convales to be held the second week in May in Los Angeles.

Members paid silent tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. M. E. Head, charter member of the chapter, who had aided in organizing the local group.

Mrs. Lillian Pritchett introduced a contest, awarding prizes to Mrs. Grafton and Mrs. Guy Miller, who held first and second high honors. Mrs. C. E. Price, president, conducted a business meeting, during which plans were made to hold the next meeting April 9 in the home of Mrs. L. A. Cock, Tustin.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards
Entertain Members
Of Bridge Club

Rather an interesting custom adopted by members of an evening contract club of asking a guest couple to each of their monthly parties, was observed this week by Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Edwards who entertained Mr. and Mrs. John J. Vernon at the club session in their home, 928 North Baker street.

However, on this occasion there were two additional guests, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Mitchell, substitute players for Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Dennis who were unable to be present. Others of the club group to share the hospitality of the Edwards home were Mr. and Mrs. Olin Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Osborn Holmes and Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Schmid.

Mrs. Edwards had many flowers to grace her home, including sprays of flowering peach, zinnia, sweet peas and maiden-hair fern. Mrs. Holmes added to the fragrant array a basket of double stocks in deep magenta, and Mrs. J. A. Whitney, a neighbor of the hosts, sent quantities of sweet peas to use for decorating tables at the late refreshment hour.

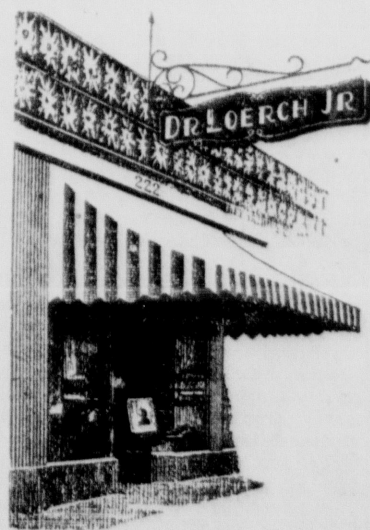

Mrs. Schmid, who assisted in checking bridge scores, also gave aid to the hostess in serving strawberry shortcake with coffee at the conclusion of play, and in awarding prizes. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell made the two high scores of the evening and won first prizes, while those with low scores meriting consolation gifts were the hosts herself, Mrs. Edwards, and John J. Vernon.

CLASSES have been improved a great deal in the last few years.

Friday, March 13 Has Happy Meaning For Birthday Hostess

Because her thirteenth birthday anniversary fell on Friday the 13th, Miss Helen Rupert, young daughter of the George Rupert home, 312 South Bristol street, stressed the omen for happiness thus suggested by entertaining a dozen of her friends at a 13 party last night.

What made the occasion doubly significant was that the date also celebrated a seventeenth wedding anniversary for Mr. and Mrs. Rupert, although they made the whole evening a special one for their daughter.

A gay green and white motif was apparent in flowers and in all party appointments, culminating with the refreshment hour when shamrock sandwiches, green and white ice cream and birthday cake were served. The cake's white frosted surface sparkled with thirteen pale green tapers.

Miss Helen received many pretty gifts from her guests who were the Misses Robin Maynard, Betty Davis, Fayetta Wilson, Irene McCullah, Kathleen May and Virginia Michaelson, with half a dozen ladies, Merlin Johnson, Junior Krome, Clarence Angel, Junior Steffen, Billy Dean Durbin and Gordon Heath.

Jesus Teaches His Disciples to Pray

Text: Luke 11:1-13
International Uniform Sunday
School Lesson for March 15.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

Jesus, by precept and example, laid profound emphasis upon prayer.

What did Jesus mean by prayer? It could not have been merely the repetition of petitions and the saying of formal words, because we are told in one place that, at a time when He was facing days of unusual demands upon His strength, He went into the mountains and continued all night in prayer to God.

That night of prayer must have been a night of rest and relaxation and meditation. The yearning of His heart, and the sense of His deep dependence upon God the Father, no doubt found expression in spoken words, but a whole night of such expression would have been far from peaceful, and we must think of that long period of prayer as a time of the outgiving of His soul to God in ways that could not be expressed in words.

Similarly, Jesus laid the great stress in prayer upon its private exercise. Men were not to pray to be seen by their fellowmen, but the true prayer was the prayer in secret where a man was alone with God.

It is instructive, however, to remember that Jesus did not confine all emphasis to prayer in secret and prayer that never finds any full expression in words. He has in very definite form set for us the model of all praying in what we call "the Lord's Prayer."

The disciples evidently found the need of some form of expression in which they could put their aspirations.

Disciples of later generations have felt this same need. There are some who do not find it easy to put their prayers into exact forms and rituals.

I remember once hearing the principle of an Oxford college, a devout and earnest man of Puritan background, say, "When a minister reads a prayer, I cease to pray."

That is an extreme view and one that seems to ignore the yearning of other hearts, the sort of yearning that has found its satisfaction in rituals and in books of common prayer, and the sort of yearning that these intelligent disciples apparently had when they came to Jesus with the request that gave to the world the Lord's Prayer.

The Lord's Prayer, however, should not be regarded simply as a form. What Jesus was giving His disciples was the manner of prayer and not merely an exercise in words. His prayer contains the principles of all praying.

There is, first of all, uplifting of the soul in adoration and devotion; all true prayer is worship. There is the linking of the soul with the plans and purposes of God—"Thy kingdom come;" all true prayer is a passionate desire to know and do the will of God.

There is a linking of prayer with the common places of daily life—"give us our daily bread." There is an expression in prayer of the true relationship of man to his fellows.

The prayer for God's good will and forgiveness is made contingent on man's good will toward his fellows and his forgiveness of those who have sinned against him. There is prayer for correctness of life and perfection of character—"lead us not into temptation."

Though it is not found in the passage of our lesson, there is in the Lord's Prayer the ascription of glory and honor. What could be more complete as a representation of what prayer should be in every life?

"The Religion of Life"

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." —John 10:10.

Jesus in this text declared the purpose of his coming. It was not to burden the world with more rules and laws to which man was to yield unswerving obedience; but primarily "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." The law had served its purpose. It was our school-master to bring us unto Christ that we might be justified by faith. The life that Jesus came to bring does not consist in trying to keep the law; but in knowing God our Heavenly Father, for we read in John 17:3, "This is life eternal that they might know Thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou has sent." It is only through Christ that we can know God, for we read again in Mat. 11:27, "Neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him."

This life has two aspects. It is everlasting. "God so loved the world, that he gave His only begotten son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Not only will this life last forever; but it is indeed, life abundant, life triumphant. It is quality plus quantity. Even death itself does not quench this life, for to him who has it, death has lost its sting, and the grave its victory.

In living this life in fellowship with God we must look to Jesus Christ as our example. Many have thought that Christianity, which is the religion of life, should have little or no concern for the physical wellbeing of humanity. Christ on the contrary manifested a deep concern for every human need. His sympathy went out to the hungry, the sick and suffering, and especially the sinner and heartbroken.

On a certain occasion when many people were gathered together, He said to His disciples, "I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat." We shall remember how at this time He miraculously fed them all before He let them depart.

He sympathized with those who were afflicted in body. No one can read the New Testament without coming to the conclusion that Christ was very sensitive to the physical suffering of people. He came "that we might have life, and have it more abundantly." The Pharisees of His day were more concerned about keeping the Sabbath day holy, than they were in trying to restore a person to health. They criticized Christ for not keeping the Sabbath when He healed the sick on that day. The answer of Christ was that the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath. Nothing in His estimation was so important as helping the needy and helpless.

Not only does Christ sympathize with the hungry and sick; but He shares our sorrows and helps bear our burdens. When meeting the bereaved and sorrowing His message was "Fear not, be of good cheer." It was, however, in the salvation of the soul that Christ was primarily concerned. He came to seek and save that which was lost. He came that we might live victoriously not only in this world but throughout all eternity. We find Him weeping over Jerusalem because they had refused His salvation. In the temple we hear Him cry, "If any man thirst let him come unto me and drink." He poured out His life for the salvation of men. The price of redemption is paid. On the cross Christ cried, "It is finished." But the task of bringing the world to the life-giving Christ is not finished, neither is the task of creating an environment that shall be healthful and conducive to the abundant life. God's people have a duty to perform. Jesus brought life. Are we manifesting it? We are workers together with God. "And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son."

THE TINYMITES

"I know what I'll do, if I can. I'll sit right here and get real tan," said Goldy. "I just hope the sun flower's rays will do the trick."

"Beneath the real sun, shining down, I often have turned nice and brown. I don't imagine these rays will accomplish it as quick."

The little water lily smiled and said: "I'm very sorry, child, but these rays will not tan at all. They are not strong enough."

"The only benefit I'll get is that they'll dry me, when I'm wet. Let's all go back in swimming, while the water is not rough."

"Okay," cried Scouty. "'Twill be fun." And 'twas no sooner said than done. The cat-tail brought forth bathing suits the Tynymites could wear.

They found a spot where they could change. "Oh, my, oh, my, but you look strange," the lily said. "In fact, at first, you near gave me a scare."

Then everybody took a dive. Wee Coppy shouted: "Sakes alive! The water is as warm as toast. Let's not stay in too long."

Soon everybody crawled ashore, to use the sun flower's rays once more. The rays not only pepped them up, but made them feel real strong.

Soon Duncy loudly shouted: "Hey, who is that heading over this way?" "Why, that's Miss Black-eyed Susan," said the lily, with a grin.

"Just watch her and you'll see a sight that should please every Tynymite. Her home is that vase, over there. Now, look! She's jumping in."

"I've never seen a sight like this. I only hope she doesn't miss," said Goldy. "Why, her eye is black. That really is a shame."

ASSASSINATION by a disappointed office-seeker brought an abrupt end to the promising career of President James Abram Garfield. Just three months after he had entered office, in 1881. With his martyrdom came the end of the political "spoils system" introduced by President Jackson in 1829, and the beginning of civil service.

Garfield came of poor parents, and drove mules along the canal towpaths of Ohio when a boy. By hard work he prepared for college, being graduated with high honors in 1856. He taught, studied law, and fought on the Union side in the early part of the Civil War. In 1863, he was elected a representative in Congress, and in 1880 he became senator. The same year he was elected to the presidency.

Garfield's portrait appears on five U. S. stamps, including the current 6-cent value. The issue of 1902 indicates the date of his birth (1831) and of his death (1881). A similar stamp was reissued in 1922, to commemorate the 91st anniversary of Garfield's birth.

GENERATOR WINS HONORS

Dispatches to The Register from New York yesterday brought joy to the hearts of all students in Santa Ana High school.

The dispatches conveyed the announcement that the "Generator," high school publication, had won second honors in a nationwide contest. In addition the publication had been chosen for a place on the new "All-Columbian."

This honor is to high school publications what "All-American" is to college football players.

When it is realized that the Generator competed against high school papers from all parts of the nation, the honor is one rightly to be proud of.

The award was made in the annual contest of Columbia Interscholastic Press association, Columbia university, New York.

To all members of the Generator staff and to the faculty advisor, John McCoy, The Register extends its congratulations.

CUTTING THE SCHOOL BILL

States and communities suffering from small, badly equipped, and poorly staffed rural schools might well take a cue from Michigan.

Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction there, is seriously considering a plan to reduce the number of Michigan rural schools from 6700 to 700 or 800. He charges that the present system is extravagant and a disgrace to education.

Michigan, along with other states, he points out, pays its teachers as low as $30 a month in the poorer rural districts, and often they are forced to collect part of this pittance by "boarding around" with the farmers, as backwoods schoolmasters did in pioneer days.

The new plan would unite seven or eight of these districts and construct a central school to which children living at a distance might be transported. Competent teachers then could be employed at reasonable salaries, and modern equipment installed at a total expense not greater than present costs.

If the proposal is adopted and works in Michigan, it is a new deal for rural children that no state can afford to pass up.

BACK TO DEMOCRACY

The diminutive state of Estonia stands out sharply on the European map these days, because it tried dictatorship and found it sadly wanting. To that end the electorate recently voted three to one to return to democracy.

Perhaps Estonia became sorely tried at repeated Nazi-inspired moves to gain control of the government during its dictatorship or perhaps Estonians found there is nothing like democratic rule to allay unrest in a country. In any event the little country symbolizes the handwriting on the wall for Nazism within its borders.

Fortunately for Estonia, President Konstantin Paets was not the conventional "strong-arm" type. He not only understood the mass mandate, but he paved the way for it.

It would be interesting to note how long dictatorships might survive in other European states were the people given a free hand to direct the course of their government without propaganda or persecution.

THE EMPLOYED PAYING THE BILL

It seems strange that so many people who are working fail to realize that they are really paying the unemployed bill.

Just the other day, we picked up a young man on the road who, in conversation, mentioned that he was not much affected by the unemployment because he had been steadily employed. He did not realize that his wages, the purchasing power of his wages, was being reduced enough to help pay for all the lack of production resulting from unemployment and to help pay for the support of all the unemployed. When the workers, who have jobs and those who have had savings, realize that this is reducing their purchasing power, their living standards, they will insist that everyone produce something, no matter how small it is in order to help reduce the cost of their support. We will have low living standards until people begin to realize that unemployment reduces the living standard of every man employed.

FRENCH HATRED MOVES SPARK TOWARD WAR

Reading the dispatches from Europe these days is a good deal like watching the sputter and crackle of a spark moving along a fuse toward a sheaf of dynamite sticks. You get the feeling that there will be a grand explosion pretty soon if somebody doesn't get up and stamp on the spark; and so far everybody's feet seem to be nailed to the floor.

Whatever happens to this newest development in the Rhineland, no one can doubt that the people overseas are building up for a war. It may come next week and it may not come until 1938, but that it is actually on the way is painfully evident.

And as the screams of virtuous surprise go up to the unfeeling heavens from France, it might as well be pointed out right here that the French have been asking for something like this for the last 18 years.

Whoever may have been to blame for the war of 1914, the one clear fact is that when that war ended the way was open, for the first time in modern history, to build an enduring peace in Europe. The militarists were discredited; the common people were everlastingly sick of war. Mankind had learned its lesson, it seemed, once and for all.

But tired old Georges Clemenceau was a great hater, and he took his people along with him. Germany was saddled with an impossible peace. Reparations totals were put 'way up beyond the farthest borders of sanity. Every humiliation that could be devised was imposed.

As the years went on, France's attitude remained the same. Germany was to live, permanently, crushed and impotent.

The fact that Germany for some years had a government which honestly tried to work out some peaceful solution to Germany's problems made no difference; the unyielding, die-hard attitude of France made it impossible for that government to survive and gave Herr Hitler and his Nazis the kind of soil in which they could grow.

Now Europe, after all, is not so very big. The nations that occupy that crowded peninsula have to keep on living together. As Hitler pointed out in his recent speech to the Reichstag, "their fate is inseparably united, culturally and economically." To keep alive and intensify the passions of hatred and fear and suspicion is to make catastrophe inevitable.

And France's contribution to human history in the last 18 years has been to keep those hatreds and fears alive; to act in such manner that they could not possibly die.

So what we have today—German troops along the Rhine, French troops moving to the frontier, the spark sputtering its way closer and closer to the dynamite—is merely the logical fruit of French post-war policy.

France has been asking for trouble ever since the war. If trouble comes, and we are asked in the name of Lafayette for sympathy, money, and guns, let's remember that.

EXAMPLE FOR THE COURTS

American judicial procedure has become famous, among other reasons, for its procrastination. It is no idle gesture on the part of counsel, for instance, to secure an appeal that can mean a year's or even two years' delay in final adjudication.

But now comes the supreme court of the United States with the announcement that it will delay summer vacation of its justices, if necessary, to expedite final decisions in vital New Deal cases. In a word, the highest court in the land, recognizing there is quite often an element of justice in promptness, has set an example for all lower courts in the country.

For that matter the high tribunal stands out commendably for the tremendous amount of work it has accomplished in recent months. The burden has been unprecedented both as to the number of cases and as to their broad national significance.

Our lower courts, which ordinarily take a vacation from May to September, might take the hint.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

A conscientious Ohio mother recently refused her 11-year-old son permission to attend a two-gun, wild west thriller at the neighborhood theater, on the ground that it would be too exciting. Instead, she held out the relatively dull prospect of a heavier, "more grown-up" movie coming the following week.

The boy protested loudly, lost the argument and then left the house. His mother next heard of him from coastguardsmen, who had rescued the boy from a block of floating ice in Lake Erie. Lacking the excitement of the movie, he had gone out to seek some in real life—and had found it in over-abundant measure.

In this way that mother learned the fundamental fact of youth, that its energy—somewhere, somehow—will have an out.

This is no brief for the galloping thriller, but so long as boys will be boys the little theater around the corner may provide a fairly safe play pen for the youngsters, after all.

It is a good thing to be rich, and a good thing to be strong, but it is a better thing to be beloved by many friends. —Euripides.

Day By Day In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1935)

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Controlled economy is on trial before the Supreme Court of the United States.

Does Congress have the right to pass laws fixing prices of goods of any kind moving from state to state?

This is the issue which has arisen in connection with the constitutionality of the Guffey Coal Act and in some respects the case is broader than the Schechter case which declared the NRA invalid.

Indeed, the case now being argued by the Department of Justice constitutes in effect a re-argument of the issue, imperfectly raised in the Schechter case, or at least imperfectly from the viewpoint of the New Dealers who have had several months in which to develop their theory as to the validity of congressional power over price-fixing.

The key to the New Deal strategy is to be found in the briefs formally filed with the Court. They reveal an amazing shift in attack and one that is in a sense far more significant than the approach made by the New Deal lawyers when they argued the Schechter case.

To develop the new argument, Professor Edwin S. Corwin of Princeton university was brought into service. He had been on a year's leave of absence from his post and accepted the invitation of an old friend, John Dickinson, assistant attorney general, to collaborate in the preparation of briefs.

First and foremost, the New Deal now concedes something that was not at all conceded on the floor of Congress when the Guffey Act was passed, namely that the act does not stand within the right of Congress under the taxing power. This position is abandoned though the opponents of the law in their brief insist that the existence of a provision compelling producers of coal to join the code or suffer a prohibitive penalty tax is enough to invalidate the law anyhow.

The New Deal, on the other hand, contends that the penalty is proper if Congress has the right to regulate sales or prices in interstate commerce. In other words, no attempt is made to rest on the taxing power, for the reason probably that the supreme court in the famous child labor cases said that the taxing power could not be used as a subterfuge to regulate interstate commerce.

The New Deal lawyers now turn the argument around. They say that Congress has the right to fix prices in interstate commerce and as a part of its authority it can invoke a penalty tax. If this is upheld, it is insisted that hours and wages can be regulated by the Congress as an incident of the same power to regulate interstate commerce.

Most important then is the New Deal contention as to why it thinks Congress possesses the right to regulate sales or prices in interstate commerce. Here the Corwin philosophy comes into play. He has insisted right along that the commerce power given Congress was broad enough to regulate activities of business that are related to the interstate shipment or sale of goods.

In the Schechter case, the New Deal argued that anything which "affected" interstate commerce was a proper subject for congressional action and it was insisted that the NRA codes covered those operations of business which "affected" interstate commerce. The Supreme Court said in the Schechter opinion that things which "affect" interstate commerce might, of course, come under the Congressional power, but that the effect had to be direct and not remote, and that killing and selling chickens after they arrived at the slaughterhouse of the handlers in New York had no direct effect on interstate commerce nor did the wages and hours of the employees.

The New Deal has endeavored to prove that the coal business, however, has elements that are direct in their effect on interstate commerce. The point is made, for example, that the marketing of coal is an interstate operation and that no one state can regulate the sale of coal without being affected by what happens in other coal producing states.

Thus the Supreme Court has upheld the right of the state of New York, as an emergency measure, to fix the prices of milk sold within the state, but it has ruled, on the other hand, against the right of a state to fix the price of milk coming in from a neighboring state.

The New Deal lawyers in the argument on the Guffey law have marshalled the representatives of six state governments to file briefs with the court stating that their respective states do not have the power to control the prices of coal shipped into or from their states and that, since there is no power for the states to do this, namely since this right is not reserved to the states, it must necessarily be within the federal power.

The constitutional provision with reference to "reserved rights," of course, is not confined to state governments but to the people of the states. The Tenth Amendment says that all powers not delegated to the federal government are reserved to the states "or to the people." In many cases, heretofore the Supreme Court has said that a state government does not have the right to enact price fixing legislation, as, for instance, when a Tennessee law attempting to fix the prices of gasoline at the filling station was declared to be beyond the power of the legislature and an interstate commerce with the rights of the individual.

Certainly, the Guffey case will attract more and more attention and the opinion of the Supreme Court may take on even more importance than the opinion in the Schechter case because it involves broader issues. A decision is expected sometime in the latter part of April or the first part of May—at least in the present term of the Court, which ends by the first of June.
